Planning & Zoning Board eyes options to fix lot size dilemma

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

When the County Planning and Zoning Board passed an ordinance in 1997 requiring a 75-foot lot frontage in all areas zoned R-1, the idea was to create neighborhoods that were a little more spacious, said building official Mickey Lagasse. Instead the ordinance, which has only recently begun to be enforced, has caused hours of trouble and myriad of substandard lots still for sale in the area.

Some have been allowed to build on the 50- and 60-foot lots while others have been refused permits, but the line of requests seems never ending. At Thursday's board meeting two more permits were approved for owners of the substandard lots. One, for developer Rodney Carr,

NASA, NRL share data, workload on cruise

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Two NASA scientists recently hitched a ride with the Naval Research Laboratory (NRL) aboard the Research Vessel Seward Johnson II to cooperate in data collection in the Gulf of Mexico.

Stennis Space Center's Bruce Spiering with the Technology Development and Transfer Office in NASA's Program Development Directorate, and Callie Hall, oceanographer with NASA's Applied Sciences Directorate (ASD), participated in the NRL's Slope-to-Shelf Energetics and Exchange Dynamics (SEED) cruise in mid-November.

While aboard, Spiering and Hall used ASD's optical instrument profiling package to take measurements and water samples at several locations in the Gulf - approximately 60 miles south of Mobile Bay.

The study area lies just east of the mouth of the Mississippi River, on the same latitude as the river's mouth. The scientists will be able to use optical measurements and samples in their ongoing evaluation of the bio-optic properties to determine the river plume's influence on the Gulf of Mexico's waters.

The research is part of NASA's larger scientific exploration of the Earth under the Vision for Space Exploration - to advance understanding of the Earth-Sun system, to bring the lessons of the study of Earth to the exploration of our solar system and to understand how our planet and star are changing.

Hall and Spiering's work focuses on analyzing and verifying satellite imagery from the MODIS (Moderate Resolution Imaging Spectrometer) sensor on NASA's Aqua and Terra Earth Observing satellites.

Ocean color satellites were designed to work over clear, open ocean waters, he said. The closer to the coast an image is taken, the more clouded the water is. By collecting water samples alongside measurements of water optical properties, researchers can correlate particle characteristics with their influence on the underwater light field.

Spiering and Hall also will use the recently gathered water samples to analyze properties such as concentrations of phytoplankton (microscopic plant) pigment, nutrients and total suspended matter.

Singer/songwriter Kara Klein to host fundraising concert at OLC today

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Mandeville teenager Kara Klein will host a fundraising concert entitled "Our Lady Academy Concert" at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi on Sunday, Jan. 9 at 2 p.m. Since her Debut Concert in late August, where Kara performed songs from her newly released CD "A Touch of Your Grace" to a standing-room-only crowd at Mary Queen of Peace Church, the young singer has been asked to share her musical talent both locally and nationally.

In September in Washington, D.C., Kara entertained members of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives, as well as actress Jane Seymour, at the Patron's Party for The Congressional Coalition on Adoption Institute's "Angels In Adoption" Gala Dinner.

As a result of her performance, Kara has been invited by the event organizers to perform as a featured soloist at the Gala Dinner next fall. Additionally, in early October, Kara appeared as a special guest on Michigan Catholic Radio, a Detroit-based radio station that is actively promoting her CD.

In addition to songs from "A Touch of Your Grace", Kara will give a preview of selected songs from her next CD at the Our Lady Academy Concert. One selection that the audience will be the first to hear is an original hymn entitled "Child of Light", a pro-life song that will be released as a single in a strategic alliance with the Susan B. Anthony List (SBA) - a Washington, D.C.-based political action committee dedicated to ending abortion.

Everyone is invited to attend the concert on Sunday, Jan. 9 at 2 p.m. at Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church located at 228 South Beach Blvd. in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi. A CD signing will follow the concert. Tickets are $5 for all ages and can be purchased at Our Lady Academy high school, (228) 467-7048.

Burglary suspect nabbed

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
Publisher Emeritus
A suspect was nabbed following the burglary of a Bayside Park residence, according to Sheriff Steve Garber.

Sheriff's Investigator Tom Roan said, "I arrested Buddy John Ravencraft, 26, of Waveland, at 10 p.m. on Jan. 4, as a suspect in the burglary of a Bayside Park residence, as the incident was reported."

Ravencraft's bond was set at $60,000, and he is charged with one count of the alleged burglary of a dwelling and two counts of grand larceny in other unrelated cases, Roan said.

"During the investigation phase, it was also revealed that Ravencraft is alleged to have been implicated in several burglaries in Waveland, and he faces additional charges from that municipality."

Roan said the majority of the burglarized items have been recovered. He added other charges may be filed as the investigation continues.

Christmas strikes again on April 30

Special day to benefit some Hancock County residents

Christmas may have passed, but Christmas in April in Hancock County will be on Saturday, April 30.

Hancock County organizer are now in the process of coming up with a dozen or so deserving residents in need of help.

Christmas in April is when folks from the community come together to repair and rehabilitate the homes of low income and elderly of the community.

Several teams sponsored by churches, businesses, industry, etc., are being formed and also help is needed in materials, according to Margaret Hadden.

Mrs. Hadden alone with several others made Christmas in April a reality in Hancock County.

There is a need for more volunteers from organizations, businesses, individuals, etc.

All types of trades can be used, and volunteers do not need to be skilled at home repairs, but any skills will be utilized.

Hadden is still much involved with Christmas in April in Hancock County and acts as the groups spokesperson.

In recent conversation with Mrs. Hadden, she also said there is a need for funds to purchase supplies and also donations for supplies for the necessary work.

Christmas in April does repairs in the following areas: carpentry, plumbing, electrical, plastering, painting, weather stripping, as well as trash removal and cleaning. So all types of supplies can be used.

If you would like to make a donation, make it to Christmas in April, P.O. Box 483, Bay St. Louis, MS 39520.

For more information call Judy Reeves at 467-5444, or Hadden at 467-1082.

The work done during Christmas in April on a deserving residence is something which can be handled in one day.

The signs go up and the signs come down. Bright, and well it wasn't really too bright as we just had a shower, early Thursday morning, a Bay St. Louis worker was busy removing the One Way signs on Court Street.

The making of Court Street One Way may have been a good idea, but for sure it caused

Legislature focuses on Medicaid

BY REPS. SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE J.P. COMPRETTA and JESSICA UPshaw

Medicaid, the state's health insurance program for the needy, disabled and elderly, took front stage as expected during the first week of the 2005 legislative session. The 90-day session started Jan. 4 and is scheduled to run until April 3.

Facing a court-imposed deadline of Jan. 31 to address Medicaid, members of the House of Representatives attempted on Friday to assure that about 50,000 state citizens will continue getting prescription drug coverage under the Medicaid program through the rest of fiscal and calendar year 2005. However, the bill failed to garner the required three-fifths voting majority and was defeated. Further attempts to resolve the matter are expected later this month.

HB 410 would have raised the price of a pack of cigarettes and that of other tobacco products to help pay the cost of extending the coverage for Medicaid recipients who qualify in the Poverty Level Aged and Disabled (PLAD) category. The bill passed the Medicaid and Ways and Means committees before facing a vote of the full House of Representatives.

Finding ways to finance and curb growth in the health insurance program for almost one-fourth (about 750,000 people) of all state residents will be a prime focus during the session. Some members of the Legislature have floated ideas to pay the increased costs not only for the current fiscal year but for FY 2006 beginning July 1, 2005.

COULD BE UNCOMFORTABLE!

Longtime problems leave Mississippi stuck in neutral

BY TERRY R. CASSREINO
The Meridian Star

Mississippi notched several success stories last year, including limits to outrageous jury awards in civil lawsuits and economic development efforts expected to land hundreds of new jobs.

But for every step forward Mississippi makes, old, persistent, nagging problems and issues — some that have been around for decades — continue to stymie significant progress in the state.

It's been that way for years. And unless some brave public officials decide to take on these "sacred" issues as their pet project, bound and determined to make a difference, relief seems out of reach.

Simply put, for every action state legislators and other officials take to help prod Mississippi forward, the end result is either too little, too late or both for anything to have a lasting, long-term effect.

Elected officials don't help either when they take an I-don't-care attitude, just like some lawmakers did in November when they appeared to dismiss economic development issues during a special legislative session.

Disturbing trends

With that in mind, I offer this — a quick look at my list of the most disturbing trends of 2004, all of which have helped keep Mississippi stuck in low gear while everyone else seemingly passes us by. Growing partisanship: Mississippi has had it good the past few years. A burgeoning two-party system without the divisive bickering among Republicans and Democrats that dominates business in the U.S. Capitol. Republicans and Democrats have put aside their differences and effectively worked together for years in the Mississippi Legislature. But with GOP officials leading the way, party politics now play a bigger role, and, unfortunately, stalemate is becoming a political reality.

State taxes: With Mississippi needing as much as $1 billion in extra cash to fund its budget, the first thing some lawmakers have turned to for possible relief is the state sales tax. They say it's the fairest of all taxes.

Wrong. The sales tax is a regressive tax that puts a greater burden on the poor and middle class. If lawmakers must raise taxes, then the income tax is more fair because the amount of money paid is based on a person's annual earnings and his ability to pay.

Budget woes

Mississippi's budget. Despite spending $12.7 billion this year alone, remarkably only a handful of people in the Legislature had anything to do with where the money went and what specific programs were funded.

Until the House speaker, lieutenant governor and legislative budget committee chairmen agree to share that power, rank-and-file lawmakers and the people in general will remain in the dark and unable to intelligently discuss state spending priorities.

Zoning

is just another in a series of approvals by the board for the developer. Fourteen others were approved in May in the same area, Ireland St.

Thursday's approval was given because the building office had mistakenly issued a building permit to Corr for an adjoining 50-foot lot he owned. The permit was issued to Corr in August and a home is currently being constructed on the site, he said.

An approval was also given for another 50-foot lot on the same street that Corr had sold to Charles Murphy in July, with the assurance that it was a buildable lot. Commissioner Ray Ladner told board members that it was unfair that Corr receive a permit while Murphy be denied one.

Several people in both the Riverview area and in Jordan River Estates have recently been denied permits to build on substandard lots. Many bought the lots from area real estate agents. Supervisors have asked the Planning and Zoning Board to rethink the ordinance and come up with a solution that will take care of the problem county wide.

Suggestions have been to come up with a new zoning classification, to change R-1 zoning back to R-2, where 50-foot lots are permitted, or to base decisions on the surrounding neighborhood patterns. A workshop will be held on the matter on Tuesday, Jan. 18 at 4:15 p.m. at the supervisors' board room in the Hancock County Courthouse.

guns from a Kiln residence on January 3.

Fowler is lodged in the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility, as he turned himself in on Jan. 6, and had a cash bond set at $50,000 by a Hancock County Justice Court Judge, Luther said.

Luther recovered the guns in the woods on Friday in the woods off the Kiln-Picayune Road. The guns included a Remington 12 gauge shotgun, a Mossberg 20 gauge shotgun, a Winchester .30.30 rifle, and a Marlin .22 caliber rifle.

Deputies making the initial response to the burglary were Charles LaFontaine and Todd Drummond.

The burglary is being investigated by Luther and Investigator André Fizer.

Longleaf Pine Handbook available

by James L. Cummins

The Mississippi Fish and Wildlife Foundation, or Wildlife Mississippi as it is commonly called, in cooperation with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Mississippi Land Trust, have recently released a new handbook titled "Restoring and Managing Longleaf Pine: A Handbook for Mississippi Landowners."

The handbook is an easy read, yet provides methods for restoring longleaf pine, the economic value of longleaf compared to loblolly pine and the various cost-share assistance programs for paying for the reforestation of longleaf.

The reforestation of this type of pine is extremely important. An estimated 60 million acres of longleaf have existed throughout the Southeast in the past; today, approximately 2 percent of that original acreage of longleaf exists. This decline is due to numerous factors that include land clearing for agriculture and development, replacement of harvested stands with loblolly and slash pine and the overall reduction in the use of fire as a management tool. Today, longleaf only occupies approximately 255,000 acres in Mississippi, with the majority of acreage occurring in Forrest, Lamar and Perry counties.

"Restoring and Managing Longleaf Pine" was designed with private landowners in mind who might be considering restoring a stand of longleaf. Properly established and managed longleaf pine can have economic advantages over other species of southern pine, including loblolly pine.

"Restoring and Managing Longleaf Pine" covers a variety of topics. There is an introduction describing longleaf, an overview of the benefits of longleaf and the different types of forest classifications of longleaf.

According to Randy Browning, a fish and wildlife biologist with the Mississippi Fish and Wildlife Foundation and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the primary author of the handbook, "The handbook gives one an overview of planning for a longleaf pine stand, such as goals, site selection and the use of fire."

Management methods along with the pests and diseases associated with longleaf are discussed. The economic advantages of growing longleaf over other pines are discussed.

The landowner may also be interested in managing his or her land for wildlife. The different types of management styles for the species of wildlife that the landowner is interested in is discussed. There are a diversity of species of wildlife that live in this ecosystem and the management technique needs to be considered.

"Restoring and Managing Longleaf Pine" also gives an overview of the different financial assistance programs that are available to the landowner.

If you are interested in obtaining a copy of this handbook, please call Wildlife Mississippi's main office at (662) 686-3375 or send a written request to Wildlife Mississippi, P.O. Box 10, Stoneville, MS 38776.

Business leaders propose new development incentives

EMILY WAGSTER PETTUS
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi needs to update its incentive package to encourage development of more high-tech jobs, a state business leader said Thursday.

Mississippi Power Company President and CEO Anthony Topazi said lawmakers should update nine existing incentive programs and create two new ones.

Most of our incentives don't apply to things like data processing centers while they do apply to things like sawmills," Topazi said.

Topazi leads Momentum Mississippi, a group of business people and other state leaders who are helping Gov. Haley Barbour with economic-development ideas.

During a news conference in a crowded Capitol rotunda, Barbour said Mississippi doesn't need to buy new jobs by outbidding other states. But he said the state does need to update the types of incentives it gives to help new and existing businesses.

The Momentum Mississippi proposals would not take money out of the state budget in the fiscal year that begins this July 1, Barbour said. But the state would issue bonds to borrow money for the incentive programs, and repayment of those bonds would start in the fiscal year that starts in July 2006, he said.

Bills with the proposals will be filed later this legislative session.

Mississippi Development Authority executive director Leland Speed said as traditional manufacturing jobs have declined around the nation, other types of businesses, such as telecommunications call centers, have picked up.

"The opportunities that we see out there are different from the opportunities we've seen in years gone by," Speed said. "This proposed package recognizes that."

Barbour and Topazi had the Momentum Mississippi news conference while hundreds of businesspeople were at the Capitol for a lobbying day sponsored by the statewide chamber of commerce, the Mississippi Economic Council.

Affordable housing conference set for Jan. 12-14 at Beau Rivage

More than 375 people are expected to attend Mississippi's Annual Affordable Housing Conference, generating approximately $75,000 in revenue for the state.

Mississippi Home Corporation (MHC), the state's housing finance authority, will host the conference, January 12-14, 2005 at the Beau Rivage Resort and Casino.

According to Mike Davis, Assistant Director of Convention Sales with the Beau Rivage Resort and Casino, MHC's annual three-day event is anticipated to generate a substantial amount of revenue for the state, which includes attendees' lodging and meals. Even more funds may be generated due to the extra curricular activities that are provided.

"In addition to a power-packed conference agenda, we try to further entice conference attendance by hosting the annual event in different areas of the state," said Jenny Layton, Vice President of Marketing at MHC. "Mississippi's Gulf Coast is a tourist attraction within itself," Layton added.

"This year's conference theme, 'Affordable Housing Survivor,' will be a time to highlight, and reflect on some successful affordable housing efforts in Mississippi's ever-changing housing market," said Dianne Bolen, MHC's Executive Director. "We will explore developments and housing-related services sponsored by business, non-profit, and government organizations," she added.

The conference is also an opportunity for attendees to identify emerging needs and possible new initiatives to establish new goals in providing affordable housing in Mississippi.

For more information concerning Mississippi's Annual Affordable Housing Conference, visit MHC's web site at www.mshc.com.

Workers told of layoffs at Pascagoula shipyard

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP) — About 120 workers at Northrop Grumman Ship Systems' Ingalls shipyard in Pascagoula will be laid off in two weeks.

Northrop Grumman notified the workers Thursday, one day after the company announced that cutbacks in the U.S. Navy's budget likely will mean a reduction in 2,500 jobs in the next three years at its Avondale shipyard in New Orleans and Ingalls in Pascagoula.

The layoffs are in the drafting/design section, Jim Cassidy, Ship Systems' vice president, for human resources and administration, said the affected workers were notified that the layoffs become effective on Jan. 20.

Ship Systems' President Phil Dur said the company was "going through a valley of sorts in terms of our employment."

"We do have a rhythm in shipbuilding; we have peaks and valleys," he said. "The (employment) peak we're at can't be sustained with the business we project, but we can foresee in the relatively near term, provided we're successful on several contracts we're working on. We can see a restoration of much of what we shed in the next year-and-a-half."

Ship Systems currently employs 7,355 people at its Avondale operations, 445 employees at Gulfport and 12,450 workers at Ingalls. The company is the largest private employer in Mississippi.

Apply now for NRL program

Now is the time to apply for the Naval Research Laboratory's high school summer employment program, the Science and Engineering Apprentice Program (SEAP).

SEAP places students in a one-on-one relationship with a scientific or technical mentor in a laboratory environment for eight weeks during the summer. Students explore typhoon events, use high tech computer programs to study mine warfare, analyze sediments on high powered electron microscopes, study data on water formations, design 3-dimensional numerical models, and much more.

About a third of former SEAP students have been hired directly from this program into the Student Temporary Employment Program.

Requirements for the program are: high school students interested in science and/or engineering; 16 years of age by June 1, 2005; U.S. citizenship required (Permanent Resident Alien status will also be considered by some labs); security clearance background checks may be required.

Applications for this year's program, which runs from June 6 through July 29, may be found online at www.armanagement.org then follow the SEAP link. A Mardi Gras costume design by Carter Church of Bay St. Louis.

Mardi Gras: A Celebration opens featuring work by Bay's Carter Church

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Walter Anderson Museum of Art will display, for the first time in its history, an exhibit depicting the glamour, artistry, legend and lore of Mardi Gras.

Open now and on view until Feb. 20, two of the dazzling creations of premiere costume designer Carter Church will be on display.

The recipient of 130 Alpha Awards as well as the famous Lifetime Achievement Award presented by the Fashion Group International, Mr. Church is celebrated as the designer to the krewes of Mardi Gras. For more than four decades, his exquisite, elaborate costumes have graced the backs of dozens of New Orleans Mardi Gras krewes in New Orleans, as well as other Southern cities that have adopted the carnival tradition.

Working solely with the krewe's royal court, his garments are lavish and can require up to 400 hours of work, from design to completion. A self-taught designer, Church's perfectionism is legendary in fashion and theatrical circles. For a recent queen's gown, the designer used 750 crystal rhinestones, which he attached by hand to decorate the gown.

A student of historical dress, Church met and was influenced by Erté, the great Russian-born French art deco painter and designer, whose opulent costumes were all the rage in Paris in the 1930s, and whose drawings are collector's items, commanding a hefty fee.

An artist as well as a costume designer, Mr. Church begins each costume with a water-color sketch. Beautifully and delicately executed, these original illustrations will be on sale in the museum store.

"This exhibition will have the broadest-based appeal of any of our shows," said Marilyn Lyons, executive director of the Walter Anderson Museum. "We expect the splendid creations in this show to draw an extremely large audience, whether they are fashion lovers, artists, history students, or children."

Along with unique memorabilia of Mardi Gras's past, including photographs, rare doubloons, vintage medallions, and brochures, the exhibition will feature artifacts celebrating the Mardi Gras traditions of Ocean Springs, Mississippi. On loan from Harry Hodges, whose ancestors were old-line members of several Ocean Springs krewes, is a photograph of his great-grandfather, Captain A.J. "Tony" Catchot, who was King of the Gulf Coast Carnival Association in 1929, during which time he was also the mayor of Ocean Springs.

Included is a magnificent medallion that was on the train of his costume, saved by his daughter, Sadie Catchot Hodges, who was the first mascot of the Ocean Springs volunteer fire department; the fire truck was named the "Sadie C." Another picture, taken in the Ocean Springs Community Center, features W.H. "Bill" Hodges of Biloxi, a member and former king of Mithras, the oldest men's Carnival organization on the Gulf Coast, and his family. His wife, Gene Hodges, also appearing in the photo, was a member of Les Masqués, the most venerable women's carnival krewe on the Gulf Coast. She was also former queen of the Merry Makers Carnival Organization of Ocean Springs.

An exploration of this most famous of Southern holidays, this colorful exhibit will compare and contrast the customs, celebrations, and rituals of Mardi Gras in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. With more than 65 artifacts on view, this exhibit will be comprehensive in its scope. The exhibit will also incorporate the stunning photographs of Biloxi-born photographer Lyle Bongé, depicting the high spirits as well as the wildness of New Orleans Mardi Gras.

On loan from the Ogden Museum of Southern Art, the Zulu artifacts, owned by Aaron Mintz, now deceased, are a compelling addition to this exhibition.

The Walter Anderson Museum of Art is located at 510 Washington Avenue, Ocean Springs.

Garden tips for a brand New Year

This is a great time to settle down with the new catalogues and see what is new and different to try in a New Year. Breeders can develop some of the strangest things, but sometimes even they realize they have gone too far. Rupp Seeds has come up with a new squash/pumpkin that looks like it has been touched by Jack Frost and even they call it One Too Many. Cosmic Purple carrot has a purple skin and an orange to yellow core and is available from several sources including Johnny's seed and Seeds by Design. Folks who really like to dazzle the neighbors can also try Atomic Red, Lunar White and Solar Yellow carrots from Seeds by Design. Seeds by Design does not sell directly to growers, so you need to contact your local seed supplier now. Gardeners need to remember that carrot seed are extremely slow to germinate and would benefit from having a few radish seeds sown in the row with the carrot seed. The radish seed will quickly germinate and be grown and harvested before the carrot plants are well started.

Geppetto is a new flat leaf parsley from Meyer seed. Flat leaf parsley is the type most people prefer to cook with; curly leaf is mostly used as garnish. Parsley is a perennial culinary herb which grows well here if you can protect it from freezes. One of the best ways to grow parsley is in an old ice chest which has had the lid lost, the drain plug broken, or the hinges snapped. The 48 quart chest is large enough to grow enough parsley to keep several families in fresh parsley, but small enough to move into the garage when freezes come. The six-pack sized chest doesn't have a drain, so if you are only growing a little parsley, you need to drill a hole near the bottom.

The recent cold snap may have damaged woody plants. It has been enough time for the symptoms to start showing. Examine the twigs and small branches and prune any parts that have turned black. Keep an eye on main stems for bark splitting and note which

A Place of Serenity

John Brennan and Dave Moynan review plans for an upcoming exhibit at their new Maggie May's and the Old Town Art Market at Serenity Place in Bay St. Louis, the former Serenity Gallery.

New 'Art Market' comes to the Bay

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

An exciting change is taking place on Main St. in Bay St. Louis. A new Art Market is coming to town. And owners John Brennan and Dave Moynan hope the change will be a positive one for both artists and residents of the area. They say they want to make Hancock County and Old Town an "art destination."

On Saturday the gallery officially kicked off the project with "A 14th Night" Open House at their new Maggie May's and the Old Town Art Market at Serenity Place at 126 Main St.

The two men are the new proprietors of Serenity Gallery, purchased recently from long time owner Jerry Dixon, who will retire to work on his own artistic pursuits. Serenity Gallery will become two entities, Maggie May's Exploring the World of Art and the Shops and Artists of Serenity Place.

Retaining the tradition of the Serenity name was important to the two because of the tradition that the name invokes with area artists, they say.

"We didn't buy Jerry's business," said Brennan. "But we inherited a great deal of goodwill that went with it. We don't take the responsibility lightly."

In February, the front of Serenity Gallery will be redone and the name Serenity Place will be permanently etched into the facade.

"Twenty years from now, people will still be able to come look for the Serenity name," said Brennan.

The two also want to retain the name of Maggie May's for sentimental reasons. Maggie May is their dog, found on the streets of New Orleans, wandering

A cat with 2 personalities: Mr. Outside and Mr. Inside

I have heard of people that have more than one cat. Some I'm told have not just two, but several, which to me seem insane. But to Stella and I, one is enough. Yet it seems to me at times that, instead of one, we have two cats, two identical black cats.

One black tom lives outside our house, one inside. To put a nice face on it, it's very confusing. The confusion comes with the fact that the Holly that lives outside the house comes when he is called. The Holly that lives inside the house doesn't.

In that simple difference there exists a world of aggravation.

When I am outside and I want Holly all I have to do is yell his name two or three times and wait. Sometimes the waiting may stretch out to a minute or two. But that's not because he's not coming, he's coming, he just may have been a good ways away. And he is hustling. More than once, after I've made my call, I've caught a glimpse of him coming from way up the street, dashing home.

Of course, this is Holly we are talking about. So when he gets to the porch, his pace abruptly changes. It becomes the amble of a stroller, a cat who just happens to be passing by. He will saunter up to me and sort of gaze around with a "no big thing, I'm here" pose.

But the fact is that he is here and he did come when he was called.

The Holly that lives in the house is another cat entirely. I have called him by name loudly without realizing he was sleeping in a chair ten feet away. Then upon my seeing him, calling again in a loud voice - mind you, I'm looking directly at him when I do this. Nothing happens. Not a hair moves. Not a tail twitch. Nothing.

But there are times

Hancock High to participate in MS Theatre Festival

On Jan. 13, high schools and community theatres from around the state will make their way to Meridian for the annual Mississippi Theatre Association's statewide theatre festival. Throughout the weekend, nine high schools and six community theatres will perform at Meridian Community College and take part in workshops and listen to critiques of productions aimed at advancing theatre arts in the schools and communities. The festival is being hosted by Meridian Community College and the Mississippi State University Meridian Campus under the direction of Ronnie Miller.

Theatres participating in the community theatre festival include: Starkville Community Theatre, Black Rose Theatre Company, Just Over the Rainbow Theatre, Tupelo Community Theatre, Delta Center Stage and Center Players. High Schools participating in the festival include: Ridgeland High School, Ocean Springs High School, Lawrence County High School, Oak Grove High School, Olive Branch High School, Hancock High School, Oxford High School, Brandon High School and Laurel High School.

Six theater professionals from around the country are being flown in to watch the productions and provide oral critiques. One high school and one community theatre will be selected to advance to the Southeastern Theatre Conference (SETC) that will be held in Greensboro, North Carolina in March. "While only one theatre in each division will advance, the main emphasis is placed on the educational experience provided by watching these productions and learning through the critiques and workshops," said Stephen Cunetto, Executive Director of the Mississippi Theatre Association.

In addition to the plays, students involved in the activities will participate in a 10-Minute Play festival where students write 10-Minute Plays that are then directed and performed by other students. This entire portion of the festival takes place in 24 hours.

Performances are open to the public. A day pass to all shows costs $15 and a week-end pass to all shows costs $25.

Views -- Mr. Out/Inside

when he is inside that I very much want him to answer. Let me show you what I mean.

"Have you put the cat out?"

This is Stella asking. The question is almost rhetorical. We are about to leave to go to Biloxi and expect to be gone for most of the day. Jennie can be trusted in the house for that length of time, but Holly... Once, when we came back from an extended day trip, we found clear signs that we had left an irate cat in the house: the loaf of bread on the kitchen counter was slashed and bits of it thrown on both the kitchen and dining room floor. The papers in my office trash basket were soiled as well as the clean clothes that Stella had left in the dryer.

If we had been in the house during that same period, none of these things would have happened. In fact we might well not have seen Holly at all during the period. But our daring to leave him alone with just Jennie for company for over six hours and the devil will pay.

So when we leave to go somewhere we call for the Holly that lives on the outside. If he doesn't come, we start looking for the Holly that lives on the inside. This Holly has made a game out of finding places to hide. Places where he can't be found. Puny places such as under the bed are kitten stuff and he hasn't tried these in years.

Once, Holly found the perfect hiding place was the rear recess of a long, low table standing beside the window in the family room. It was perfect and we almost gave up finding him, when we saw him by chance leaving it to get something to eat.

We solved that problem by putting a small mirror strategically tilted on the window sill. That stumped Holly for awhile until one day I caught him looking at me looking at him in the mirror. He has not been back there since (although we have left the mirror there as a deterrent to his returning).

Another place was the high cornices over the bedroom windows. These have a low recess behind the wide facade, which makes up their fronts. Holly isn't too secretive about these two places. He knows that for us to get him down is a project and he loves to sit in the well of one of the cornices and greet us as we enter the bedroom in our search for him. It is weird to come into the room and see a black cat watching you from that height. Holly doesn't use these places as much now that he has put on a few pounds. Getting up there is evidently a bit of work.

If we are not looking for him, he is normally, encamped in some out of the way chair or cusped beside the fireplace. You can usually find him without too much effort. The point is that he will not come when you call him and you have to go looking for him in these odd places.

What is maddening is that he may well not be in the house at all. You may search and search and find nothing and then see the Holly that lives outside, walk by a window or come to the door asking, "Did we call?"

Herzog ordained bishop for 13 Louisiana parishes

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Nearly 50,000 Roman Catholics in 13 Louisiana parishes will welcome a spiritual leader from Mississippi Wednesday when a new bishop is ordained for the Diocese of Alexandria.

The ordination Mass for The Rev. Ronald P. Herzog was held at 10:30 a.m. at St. Francis Xavier Cathedral.

Herzog, who grew up in Natchez, is leaving his position as pastor of three Mississippi churches in the Diocese of Biloxi. He succeeds Bishop Sam Jacobs, who was ordained in Alexandria in 1989 and left in 2004 to lead the Diocese of Houma-Thibodaux.

Herzog said he has not developed any special initiatives because he is concluding his responsibilities at his Mississippi churches. He said he is humbled that he has been entrusted to lead so many people and that so many church leaders will surround him at Wednesday's Mass. The ceremony will include a reading by Archbishop Gabriel Montalvo, the papal nuncio, the pope's representative to the United States.

"It is so encouraging to consider the awesomeness of knowing literally thousands of people have been praying for me in the ministry that I will begin," Herzog said.

Serenity -- Art Market

with a note on her collar. The note asked that someone give the dog a home and was from the dog's owner, an elderly person who was dying and could no longer care for the dog, the note explained.

The front of Serenity Place will serve as a world market with decorative iron, art, furniture and gifts from around the globe. The remainder of the building will continue in the tradition of Serenity Gallery, retaining the work of 52 of the 53 resident artists already showing at the gallery.

Newly added will be the Art Market, which will provide 14 intimate galleries to as many as 28 artists each Saturday and Sunday. Artists showing at the Art Market will not be showing anywhere else in town. Brennan and Moynan hope the space will provide an extra added boost for many area artists who may not otherwise have an opportunity to show in a gallery setting. They hope the market will offer more artists the opportunity to break into the art world.

They also hope that the weekend market will spur added interest in the local art community and in the community at large.

"After all," Moynan said. "People who come to the market will not just stay here. They will be going out the door to many other places around town."

Next fall they would like to organize a weekend featuring student art, from local colleges, or perhaps local high schools, Brennan said. They hope to get businesses to sponsor each

The two are not new to the art world. Moynan has managed galleries for much of his life and ran a gallery in the French Quarter for 7 years. The two ran an emporium and gift shop on Algiers Point, which featured the work of several local artists. They also worked closely with an artist's group in New Orleans and hoped to develop an art market there, but getting it organized just didn't pan out before the two made the decision to move.

The idea for the move came about two years ago, Moynan said, when he brought his terminally ill brother to Waveland for a last visit to the coast. The family used to visit the coast while the boys were growing up and Moynan's brother wanted to revisit those childhood places.

"It was so relaxing," said Moynan. "We felt good when we woke up each morning and we thought, we should feel like this all the time."

The two went back to New Orleans and made plans to move. In March they opened their retail shop in at One Magnolia Place on Beach Blvd. Business was a success and when the opportunity came up to pursue their old dream of an art market with the purchase of Serenity Gallery, they knew it was a once in a lifetime opportunity.

They had connected with The Arts Hancock County and were impressed with the widespread reach of the organization and its helpful attitude. The Arts represents artists of all mediums, from performing artists, to visual artists, to writers, and more.

"There is such a great climate of the cooperative spirit here," said Brennan. "We knew this was what we wanted."

Brennan said the project also appeals to his love of preservation. He and Moynan had worked to preserve many properties, he said, but with Serenity they feel they are preserving even more; they are preserving an idea.

"The main thing we want people to know is that this is not a dress rehearsal. We are here to stay," he said. We want to offer artists an opportunity to show their work in an atmosphere of cooperation where people treat one another as they would like to be treated themselves."

For more information contact either Brennan or Moynan at 228-463-1670 or e-mail them at magiemays@bellsouth.net.

Garden -- tips plants have damage. Be sure to monitor these damaged plants during green up next spring and be ready with protective measures to prevent disease infestation.

Each year, several calls are made inquiring about the use of non-selective herbicides (those that kill all green vegetation) over dormant turfgrass to control winter annual weeds. While there are products on the market that are labeled for such application my advice is to carefully assess your particular situation and explore all alternative options as well. These products are generally very specific as to which turf species can be treated and severe injury may occur to species not labeled. Even after the blast of cold weather we received back in early December, extreme care needs to be taken that the application is made to completely dormant turf. The recent warm temperatures may have created some new growth in many lawns. You need to survey your lawn very carefully for any spots that may be protected from the cold and exposed to the warmth of the sun that would be injured from non-selective herbicides if applied to those areas. Identify the winter weeds present and see if there is other labeled herbicide choices for control without risk to the desired turf. Some of these winter annuals can be effectively managed simply by mowing.

Acclaimed novelist comes to Bay St. Louis on book tour

THE SEA COAST ECHO Critically Acclaimed novelist James Whorton Jr. will be promoting his new book FRANKLAND in Bay St. Louis on Jan. 28. He'll be reading at BookEnds at 6 p.m.

Whorton's debut novel, Approximately Heaven (Free Press, 2003), was a "Barnes & Noble Discover" pick that the New York Times called "an alcoholic picaresque adventure of hangovers, hotel rooms, suspicious piles of cash and Johnny Rivers Tunes." Now in an equally entertaining journey through the south, comes FRANKLAND, a charmingly clever story of a quirky aspiring historian on a quest to find the lost papers of President Andrew Johnson, and the comedy of errors in which he finds himself along the way.

A master of writing eccentric yet endearing characters in the tradition of cult authors like John Kennedy Toole, James Whorton Jr. has crafted another Southern literary gem. After discovering that a missing Johnson scrapbook has been held by an heir down south, John Tolley leaves his Brooklyn apartment to follow his lead to Tennessee, an area with a character so distinct President Johnson wanted to section it off into a new state of its own called "Frankland."

With dreams of becoming the next Arthur Schlesinger, John rushes to cash in on a finding that may uncover new truths about Johnson's presidency, and is sure to make his career.

John's car breaks down along the way, landing him in an unlikely situation of events: among them a scandal in the state legislature involving a proposed lottery, chicken fights, coon hunting, and even a little romance. These events, along with the people he meets, turn John's trip to Tennessee into an escapade far more fulfilling than his original search for dirt on President Johnson.

James Whorton Jr. will be doing book events at Davis-Kidd Booksellers in both Nashville and Memphis, TN and at Lemuria Books in Jackson as well as Book Ends in Bay St. Louis.

Andrea's Annex,

Andrea's Annex, 310 Jeff Davis Ave., Long Beach, can take care of your Mardi Gras and Valentine's Day baskets and gifts that suit nearly every dietary need. Offering sugar-free, low-fat, low-carbohydrate and gourmet products, Andrea's Annex customizes the baskets to your specifications. Owner Andrea Yeager studies with gift basket experts several times a year at the Gift Basket University at America's Mart in Atlanta and at the International Fancy Food Show in New York City.

Most people have never heard of the Gift Basket University and are surprised that one exists, Yeager said. I take at least nine to 12 hours of classes at each of the shows. This helps me stay informed about the trends in gift baskets, and believe me, just as fashion styles change so do the way baskets are put together.

Gift baskets are fun for me to do. I'm a creative person and also have always layout and design. Baskets aptly fit those talents, she said.

Like her entire shop, the baskets are a labor of love for Yeager. She wants every recipient to feel that each basket was made with her/him in mind. What more could you want in a present than to know it was picked out specifically for you especially for your Valentine's sweetheart or those Mardi Gras krewe members.

In addition to the individual baskets, we also do corporate gift baskets and baskets for real estate agents, Yeager said. My staff are fully trained in basket design and have worked with me the two years that we've been open. They know that our creations must have a distinctive look.

New this season is the handmade, semi-precious and crystal Mardi Gras jewelry made by Cheryl Magandy of Long Beach. Magandy uses only the finest stones for her creations. She also makes rings, some of which feature Bearcats, Long Beach School District's mascot.

Gift baskets, while a fun part of the shop, are not all that Andrea's Annex offers. There are gourmet gifts that make great teachers', hostesses' and secret pals' gifts, costing less than $7. Hand-dipped chocolates, mulling spices, candles, cookbooks and Valentine-themed Boyd's Bears are just some of the gift selections.

For chocolate lovers, the new Eat Chocolate, Lose Weight cookbook is a must-have. Author Anne Isham of Texas has spent years researching the health benefits of chocolate and has lost weight eating it. All the recipes use natural, healthy ingredients.

Another cookbook is a new one by Aspen Mulling Spices, which uses the mulling spices in everything from appetizers to Snickerdoodles.

Andrea's Annex also offers Gourmet-To-Go menu items from Magnolia Catering in Gulfport, Manuel's hot tamales, low-carb tortillas and pizza crusts, hand-dipped chocolate and caramel apples, and fresh breads from Bello's Bakery in Ocean Springs. Sugar-free and regular cheesecakes are available daily from Hope's Cheesecakes in Gulf Shores, Ala.

We can solve those Mardi Gras and Valentine's gift-giving problems, Yeager said. If you're eating along the parade route, stop by, we'll fix you a picnic basket. If you want chocolates and chocolate martinis for a romantic Valentine's we have the chocolates and the martini mix.

So, whatever your pleasure, Andrea's Annex aims to please and make life easier for its customers.

OUR WONDERFUL AND AWESOME SOLAR SYSTEM

Our Wonderful and Awesome Solar System

I recently came across the NASA Web site and saw some truly amazing photos of our solar system's planets and moons. The beauty of Jupiter and its moons is impossible to convey in words, as is the aesthetic perfection of Saturn and its rings. There are unmanned vehicles traveling to the limits of our solar system and beyond, sending back incredible images and other data. Our universe is more amazing and awe-inspiring than any of us can imagine, and we cannot help but wonder about the mind of our Creator and what He had in mind when he made such wondrous worlds. And why, in a fairly inconspicuous corner of the Milky Way galaxy, did He create a little blue and white planet that would become our home? The Bible tells us that God generously gives us everything for our enjoyment, so perhaps the heavens are there merely for us to admire and enjoy. Truly, these stars and planets are the manifest handiwork of an amazing and generous God, and it would be the height of ingratitude for us not to appreciate these creations.

Tsunamis are a wake-up call

As late as Christmas day 2004, safety authorities around the world were still being lulled into a false sense of security. Only a profound ignorance of world weather history could have made this complacency possible; for the next days, tsunamis were not even the biggest in the history of the world, particularly around the Pacific Rim countries.

The principal difference between these and previous tsunamis is that the media both here and worldwide used to ignore virtually everything in developing countries, even mind-bending disasters. Thus, the monstrous cyclone-spawned tidal wave of August 17, 1970 in the Bay of Bengal merited a two-inch-high column deep inside the newspapers.

Casualties from that monster actually dwarfed those of the post-Christmas tsunamis of 2004, with estimates ranging from 300,000 to 800,000, the more commonly accepted figure being about 500,000. It goes without saying that confusion about the numbers was a direct result of the world's ignoring the plight of supposed second-rate people.

Only now that the media have discovered the magic of megabucks to be made through multimedia minute coverage of catastrophes in developing countries, do we finally have a blow-by-blow presentation of living history everywhere in the world. Real reality TV.

In the absence of today's blanket coverage, the mother of all monster storms was birthed in the same area as the Christmas 2004 tsunamis when the Krakatau Volcano of Indonesia blew its top on August 27, 1883 after a series of smaller eruptions.

With an apocalyptic sound heard 3000 miles away, one cubic mile of solid rock was blown off and an entire island disappeared, sending tsunamis up to 140 feet high to the surrounding shores, and large tsunamis even to southern Arabia over 4000 miles away.

Reflections on Life

by Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

The relatively low figure of 34,000 deaths was no doubt due to the lack of a reliable counting system as well as to a less dense population compared to now. That kind of eruption in the present day setting would defy all wanderings of our imagination.

As in every huge disaster, there are semi-miraculous occurrences, such as a weeks-old baby floating on a mattress which weaved its way to safety through mountainous waves, waters rushing at frightening speed and their accompanying deadly flotsam and jetsam.

Many community leaders who would have organized rescue operations, were dead, making already difficult and deadly situations much more hazardous. The vacuum left by absent leaders merely added to the raw fear and blind panic of the tsunami victims.

Hospitals were created on site, since the established ones had been either severely damaged or completely destroyed. The tools of technologies, therefore, and most elementary equipment such as medicines, anesthetics and gauze were non-existent.

Crocodiles and wild dogs scavenged human corpses, thereby further complicating an accurate count of deaths. A man and his friends told how they nervously swam across a lagoon while crocodiles were busy eating corpses on shore, mindful of how crocodiles are wont to "seize you by the soft part of the body, the stomach, and drag you away."

Adding to the terror and horror of crocodiles and wild dogs eating human and animal cadavers, were the gang rapes of children and young adults, once more fulfilling the ancient Roman's observation: "Man is a wolf to man." One can only imagine running away from the hungry jaws of crocodiles into the disgusting embrace of rapists.

All these unthinkable scenarios quickly drove together all government leaders of the handful of nations which had been victimized by the tsunamis. Bent on preparedness for killer harbor waves (tsunamis) which approach with both great speed and extreme stealth, the leaders are determined to set up an early warning system for the entire region.

Perhaps, they would be well advised to check out all the wild animals. Just as in the case of the huge Alaskan Good Friday earthquake of March 27, 1964, no bodies of wild animals were anywhere to be found. They clearly already have the kind of early warning system which we humans so desire to forewarn of sneak attacks by quakes and tsunamis.

At any rate, it is heartening to see some international leaders sufficiently aroused from their complacency and slumber to plan together and pull as one toward a single, vital goal. Even so, they shot themselves in their political foot by turning down help from the Israelis who have far more expertise than any nation in dealing with crisis situations.

Home to half of all the world's natural catastrophes and suffering three-fourths of resulting deaths, Asia is finally coming to grips with the necessity of devising short- and long-term plans for protecting its people from disasters of biblical proportions. Water, of course is the common denominator as both friend and enemy of us human beings.

Some people blame at least in part those who choose to live along coastal areas or on the flood plains. Seaside homes, of course, are the most attractive sites to the majority of people, many of whom not only dwell near water, but must make a living fishing, boating and otherwise working the waterways of the world.

This is analogous to the numerous farmers who flock to the foothills of active volcanoes because the soil there is so rich for growing crops. Rolling the dice of survival, they work and live next to fire-belching, lethal underground engines of destruction, hoping to stay a step ahead of the unpredictable, fearsome eruptions.

No matter where we live, we must learn to accommodate ourselves to the weather as it comes to us. The Alaskan Good Friday earthquake was so massive that it drove tsunamis to Alaska, to Hawaii and California, killing some people in each state. Weirdly, it also caused several fishing boats in far-off Louisiana to sink.

Coastal erosion is by far the most critical land and weather concern, especially in Gulf Coast states whose shores are becoming vulnerable to hurricanes through the loss of their barrier islands. In any case, we are going through a crash course of identifying with all our sisters and brothers in their lives and perils on the coastal lands of the world.

Scripture Says

By Ed Young

Sermon on the Mount

Jesus was talking to His disciples on Mount of Olives and they asked Him when would the end of the age take place.

He told them, nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom, and there shall be famines and pestilences, and earthquakes in various places.

And all these are the beginning of sorrows. Matthew 24:7,8.

Jesus continues telling the future to His disciples that many would be deceived, fallen prophets would lead many astray, sin would be rampant, and the love of many would grow cold.

However, when this gospel of the kingdoms is preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come. Matthew 24:14.

Jesus also warns to be ready for when that day comes.

In the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew, Jesus speaks of ten virgins, five wise, five foolish. The five wise virgins had oil in the lamps. The five foolish had no oil in their lamps.

The oil in this parable could mean the Holy Spirit. Could this mean that there are people who have the Spirit of God and know they are Born Again; and are waiting to leave here? Could the five foolish virgins who had not the Spirit of God realize as the end of time is unfolding that they are not Born Again?

There is no reason to miss eternal life. The choice is yours to make. The wise virgins said to the Holy Spirit, "give me the oil of life; give me eternal life."

Watch, therefore, for you know neither day nor the hour in which the son of man cometh. Matthew 25:13.

Don't fall into the trap of too much self-love

Self-love is a popular teaching within the church. It is said, we need to learn to love ourselves before we can love God. Self esteem taught in our schools bolsters this notion.

But look at what the Bible says, "Let each esteem other[s] better than themselves" (Philippians 2:3). That's just the opposite. The Bible continually warns against thinking too highly of ourselves. Rather, we are to esteem others more highly than ourselves. This does not mean we are to be doormats under the feet of others. Far from it. Instead, we are to put others first. We are to allow others the better place at the table and the better seats at the ball game. We are not to have a 'Me First' attitude. If you think too highly of yourself, if you are selfish, you might neglect your responsibilities. You may think the work you have been assigned is beneath your dignity. So the assigned tasks go undone. What's the result? You get bad grades. You are reprimanded by your parents. You don't get the raise you were wanting. You feel bad. But if you see the needs of others as more important than your own, you are more likely to work hard to accomplish assigned tasks. Then, when you complete your work, you feel good. Try it; you'll like it.

Grand 'brings the 'Chicken Ranch' to the Gulf Coast

THE SEA COAST ECHO
The Jefferson Performing Arts Society (JPAS) presents The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas at the Biloxi Grand Theatre January 26 - 30.

The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas is the story of Miss Mona and her girls from the Chicken Ranch. Based on a true story, the Chicken Ranch got its name during the depression when chickens were used as barter to settle a gentleman's debt. The musical begins on the last days of the Chicken Ranch, as a television broadcaster, eager for the spotlight, turns his attention to shutting the brothel down.

The Broadway musical, both naughty and heartwarming, is filled with lots of laughs, lots of good ol' country singin', lots of dancin' cowboys and lots of good, innocent fun. Songs include: "Girl, You're A Woman Now", "20 Fans", "Bus From Amarillo" and "Hard Candy Christmas".

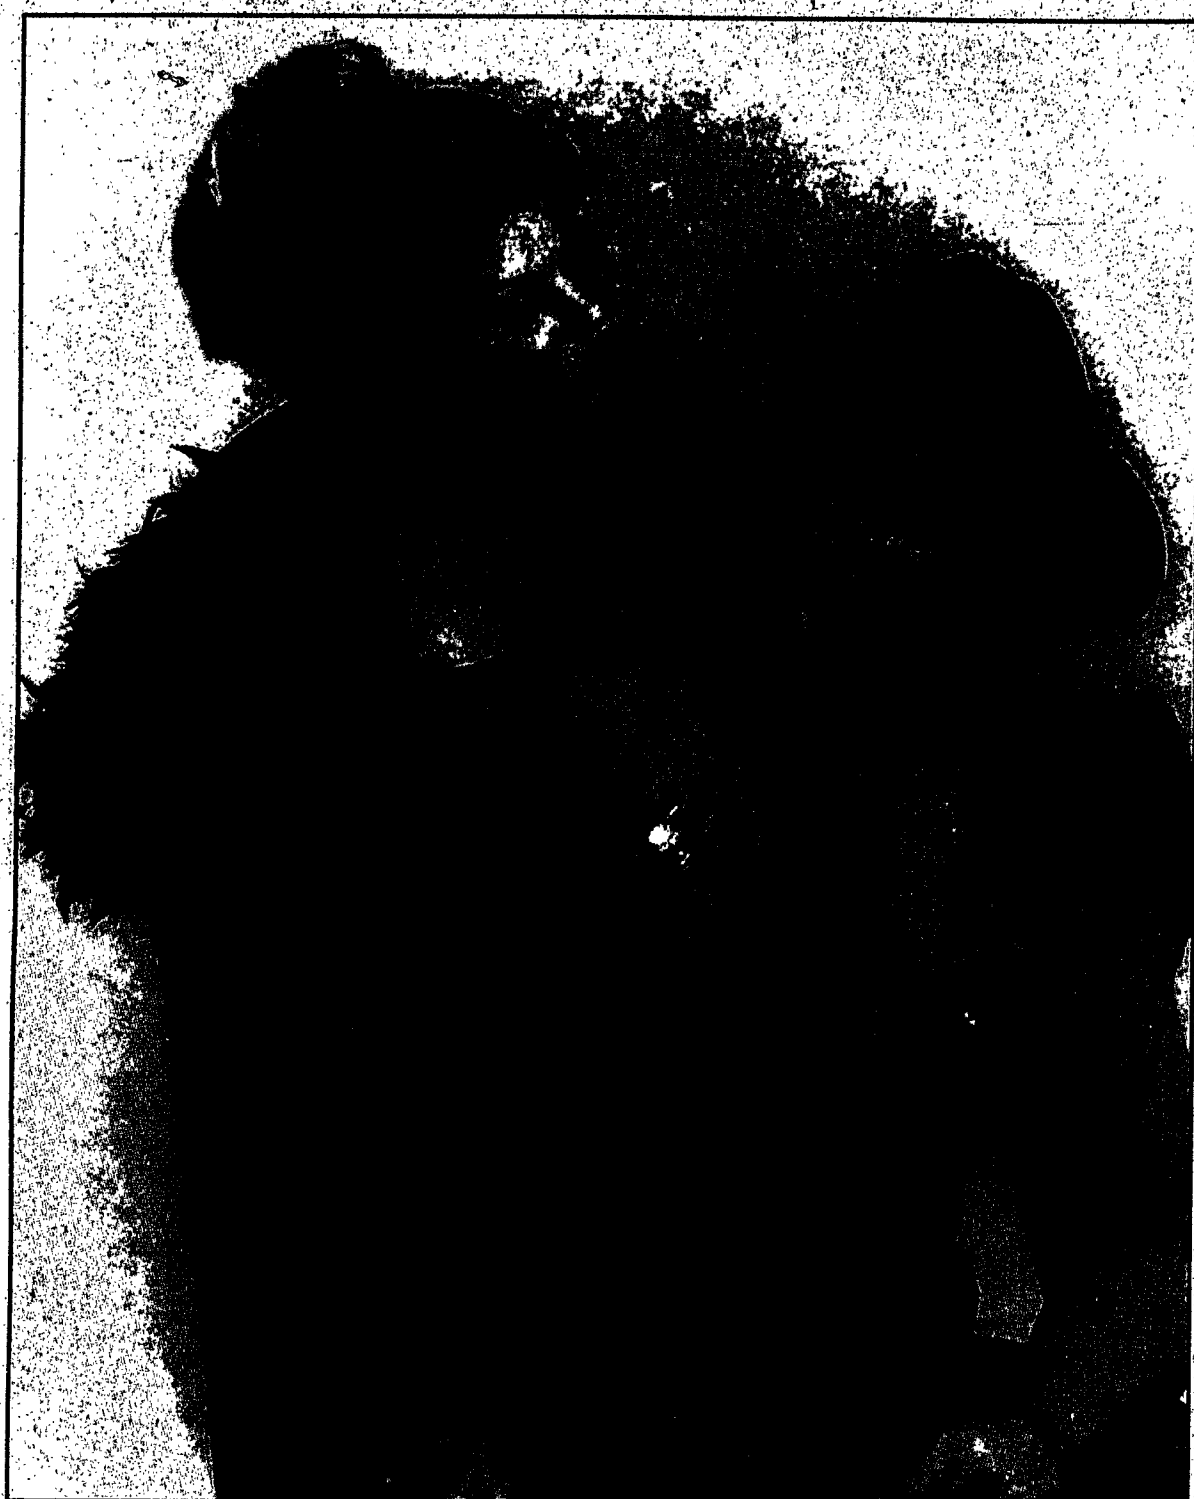

From Amarillo and "Hard Candy Christmas".

The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas was originally produced at the Actor's Studio, New York, on October 20, 1977. On June 19, 1978, the musical moved to the 46th Street Theatre on Broadway. There it enjoyed a run of 1584 performances before closing on March 27, 1982. The 1982 film version featured Dolly Parton as "Miss Mona" and Burt Reynolds as "Sheriff Ed Earl Dodd".

Formed in Metairie, Louisiana, JPAS is a non-profit organization that supports, sponsors, nurtures and promotes the performing arts in Jefferson Parish, LA and the Gulf Coast. JPAS has previously appeared in December at Grand Casino Biloxi with Disney's Beauty and the Beast as well as Cabaret and A Chorus Line in 2003.

Bluegrass master Ricky Skaggs plays Bay Magic

THE SEA COAST ECHO
Bluegrass musician, Ricky Skaggs and his band Kentucky Thunder are set to perform two shows at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis on January 14th and 15th at 9 p.m. A professional musician for 30 years, this eight-time Grammy Award winner continues to do his part to lead the recent roots revival in music with five consecutive Grammy nominated albums.

Tickets for these performances are on sale now for $14.95, $19.95 or $24.95 at the Casino Magic Box Office, by calling 1-800-5-MAGIC-5 or through any Ticketmaster outlet.

Skaggs, now 50, was born in eastern Kentucky and was already an accomplished singer and mandolin player by the time he reached his teens. In the late '70s, Skaggs turned his attention to country music. Though still in his twenties, the wealth of experience and talent he possessed served him well, first as a member of Emmylou Harris' Hot Band and later as an individual recording artist. With the release of Waiting For the Sun To Shine in 1981, Skaggs reached the top of the country charts, and remained there throughout most of the 1980s. As his popularity soared, he garnered eight awards from the Country Music Association (including "Entertainer of the Year" in 1985), four Grammy Awards and dozens of other honors.

In 1997, Skaggs established his own record label which became home to his band, Kentucky Thunder. When Skaggs & Kentucky Thunder perform, their concerts have a non-stop, no-holds-barred energy that reflects both sincere enthusiasm and consummate professionalism. It is an awesome experience, one that brings both old and new audiences to their feet.

Ricky Skaggs has often said that he is "just trying to make a living" playing the music he loves.

But it's clear that his passion for bluegrass puts him in the position to bring this lively, distinctively American form of music out of isolation and into the ears and hearts to audiences across the country and around the world.

Don't miss Ricky Skaggs, January 14th & 15th at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis! Must be at least 21 to attend.

Ex-con seeks redemption in new Fox series 'Jonny Zero'

By John Crook
© Zap2it

A tough but repentant ex-con tries to navigate a shaky road to redemption in "Jonny Zero," a gritty new Fox drama from "ER" collaborators John Wells and Mimi Leder.

The series, premiering Friday, Jan. 14, stars athlete-turned-actor Franky G as Jonny Calvo, a former bouncer struggling to find a respectable way to eke out a living without accepting the persistent overtures from his old boss, a corrupt club owner.

For Jonny, the stakes are huge. Unless he manages to stay straight, he loses virtually any chance of seeing the young son he barely knows. His dilemma makes him an easy mark for a ruthless FBI agent who blackmails him into going under cover for the agency. Fortunately, Jonny has two allies who believe in him: Random (GG), an aspiring rap artist, and troubled ex-stripper Danni Styles (Brennan Hesser).

"(The show) is really about redemption," explains executive producer R. Scott Gemmill. "That's why he gets involved with these people's lives, trying to prevent people from making the same mistakes he did. But for Jonny, it's also about retribution."

The pilot for the series captures New York with rough edges and bleached colors, courtesy of ace director and executive producer Leder, who insists that this distinctive look will be part of the show's signature style.

"We worked hard to create this color palette; the grain, create a fabric that we haven't seen before on television, and we have every intention of keeping that up," Leder says. "New York City is a huge character in our piece."

Wells says he secured rights to a failed movie script that provided the basic series concept several years ago, but sat on the property, waiting for the right actor to come along.

"(Franky) is just a wonderful actor," Wells says. "I had seen him first in 'The Italian Job' and gone, 'Jeez, who is that guy?'"

"I didn't know who John was at first," Franky G says, grinning. "I watched 'Third Watch' a lot, and then I met with him and he told me his idea, which got me very excited."

Jen Schefft

By Jay Bobbin

To date, television's two "Bachelorettes" have made successful love connections. Can Jen Schefft make it a "three-pack"?

She has that aim as the unscripted ABC series "The Bachelorette" starts its third season Monday, Jan. 10. Asked by Andrew Firestone to marry him in the third round of parent show "The Bachelor," Schefft became a free agent again when that made-by-TV relationship ended - and she gets to do the choosing this time.

In the premiere episode, returning host Chris Harrison introduces the new contenders for her heart at the four-story New York brownstone where the show is based.

"At first, I thought, 'No way. I'm not doing this to myself again,'" Schefft, an event planner, admits. "Then I talked to my parents and my friends, and it became one of those things where I started thinking, 'Why not? If it works, great. If it doesn't, at least I tried, and I can't regret not doing it.'"

"The producers allowed me to be part of the casting process as well. I got to choose who was going to be on the show, and they had never done that before, so it just seemed like a really good opportunity."

Having been through the competition from the other side, Schefft says she was "optimistic but realistic" during production of the show, which already has been completed. She's heartened that first "Bachelorette" Trista Rehn remains wed to Ryan Sutter, and also that second "Bachelorette" Meredith Phillips is still with her pick, Ian McKee.

If she feels heat over getting lucky in "Bachelorette," love herself, Schefft maintains. "I put pressure on myself anyway... but I love knowing this worked out for the other women."

Born: Jan. 23, 1976
Hometown: Evanston, Ill.
Current city: Chicago
Marital status: Single
Education: National Honor Society member, Evanston High School; graduated summa cum laude from Ohio University with a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Hobbies: Kickboxing, running, dancing, spending time with friends and family.
On the main reason she believes TV's "Bachelorettes" have been more enduringly successful in love - thus far, anyway - than the "Bachelors": "As a woman, you always want to meet someone and fall in love; when you've found the right person, you're not often looking for who might be better. Men tend to do that."

Fox's '24' returns for another long day in L.A.

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

Jack Bauer's back, with no reruns, no pre-empted and no visible bathroom breaks until May. At long last, it's time for season four of Fox's '24.'

After launching Sunday, Jan. 9, with a two-hour episode, '24' switches to its regular Monday slot the next night with a story line in which our intrepid counter-terrorism agent once again has 24 hours (and episodes) to save the nation from imminent disaster.

But things are a little different this year for Jack, who used to head up the field operations of the L.A.-based Counter Terrorism Unit. Much like the reluctantly promoted James T. Kirk in 'Star Trek: The Motion Picture,' Bauer has moved out of the action and up the echelon of success, trading in his flak jacket for a suit and tie.

But 'Trek' fans will recall that as soon as Admiral Kirk (current 'Boston Legal' star William Shatner) got a chance to bump out his young successor ('7th Heaven' star Stephen Collins) and retake command of the Starship Enterprise, he did so. So if you think that Jack's going to keep his cushy job as chief aide to Secretary of Defense James Heller (William Devane), think again.

'Yes, Jack actually really is like Kirk,' executive producer Howard Gordon says. 'He's Kirk with a few more warts. Kirk is one of my favorite characters of all time. At the Emmys, all I cared about was getting a picture of William Shatner, which, by the way, now hangs behind my desk.'

'He's one of the icons, what can you say? But yes, Jack Bauer has a lot of Kirk qualities, to be sure. They're heroes. There is a kind of intensity to both characters and both actors. One echoes the other.'

'Both are men of action rather than reflection. And deeply moral,' Gordon adds. 'They do whatever it takes to get the job done, that's for sure.'

Diehard fans of '24' may wonder if that includes Jack beheading any more terrorists or threatening their families. Not quite, but close. There is a terrorist; there is a gun. Draw your own conclusions.

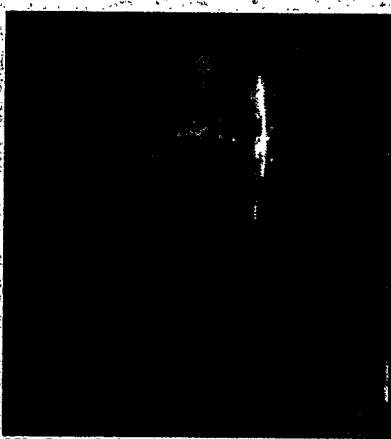

Jack is also in some familiar emotional territory. In season one, he dealt with terrorists holding his wife and daughter captive, with the wife ultimately dying at day's (or season's) end. In season two, daughter Kim (Elisha Cuthbert) got into all sorts of trouble again, including being held captive. In season three, Kim went to work for CTU but managed to find more trouble, and was - you guessed it - held captive.

By the way, while Kim is elsewhere (dealt with in a quick line of dialogue), there is another headstrong, trouble-prone teen girl around this year. As to whether Debbie (Leighton Meester) is the new Kim, Gordon says, 'I gotta tell you something, maybe we're just the old dogs with the same habits and the same tricks. It represents a little less guilt than trying to reproduce Kim. If anything, we would have tried to avoid that, but maybe we can't help ourselves.'

Season four begins 18 months after season three (which began three years after season two, which began more than a year after season one, which means '24' is practically into the next decade by now). After having a failed affair with Kate Warner (Sarah Wynter) between seasons two and three, Jack is embroiled in a risky romance with Audrey (Kim Raver), the married daughter of his new boss.

To no one's surprise Audrey winds up in trouble, along with her father, forcing Jack to buck the system once again to save one he loves.

'Yes,' Gordon says, 'and it's worked so far. Jack is thinking, 'Can I do this job

Kiefer Sutherland plays counterterrorism agent Jack Bauer, who again has 24 hours to save the country from imminent disaster. In '24,' which begins its fourth season Sunday on Fox.

and have a life and actually drink from the milk of human kindness? After beating himself up for three years, he says, 'All right, I'll have a life, but I won't have this job.' Then he finds himself pulled back into it. It's more a function of his trying to have what he's always wanted and making sacrifices, then finding himself unable to enjoy that.'

While Jack and Heller are having a rough day, actor Devane is having a ball. 'Kiefer and I, running around shooting. It's all I can do to keep from laughing. It's amazing what happens in one day. Nobody eats or goes to the bathroom. You can't sweat the small stuff on '24.'

Other than Sutherland, the only returnee is Mary Lynn Rajskub as the cranky yet efficient CTU analyst Chloe O'Brien - although Carlos Bernard and Reiko Aylesworth make guest appearances as CTU operatives Tony Almeida and Michelle Dessler, respectively.

Frances Reid hits the Big 9-0

Frances Reid

By Paulette Cohn
© Zap2it

It isn't every day that an actress reaches her 90th birthday, so when Frances Reid hit the Big 9-0 last month, 'Days of our Lives' threw her a birthday bash.

'I was thinking I would last about a week or so, and here I have been ever since,' says the last original cast member of her first day on the soap. 'Isn't it wild how time gets away from you when you are enjoying what you are doing?'

Thirty-nine years ago when 'Days' first started, Reid recalls that the actors hadn't gotten used to the idea of learning a new script every day. So executive producer Ted Corday helped them out with an early version of today's teleprompter.

'Things would be written out on the machine, and they were set at a certain pace, so they went along with you when you were performing,' Reid explains. 'But sometimes the machines got a little fussy, and they were ahead or behind. It was very upsetting.'

As disturbing as learning she was being 'killed' off last year?

'I didn't know what to think, and I thought it was better off not to think of the circumstances,' she admits. 'They hire me to come to work. I thought, 'They are doing it their way because they want to make a good story.'

Casting News: Despite rumors that Donna Mills would replace Joan Van Ark as Gloria Fisher Abbott on 'The Young and the Restless,' it isn't so. Judith Chapman (ex-Ginny Blake Webber, 'General Hospital') will take over the role as of Jan. 17.

Dear Paulette: What happened to the story line involving Danny Romalotti on 'Y&R'? It seems he was just written out with no explanation. Daniel doesn't even mention a father in his lines. -Chris S., via the Internet.

Dear Reader: According to Michael Damian, who plays Danny, the character has been written out of the show. Damian put the following message on his Web site: 'The official explanation from the 'Y&R' production office is that Jack Smith cannot find a story line for Danny.' As far as we know, there are no plans to recast.

Silverstone & NBC: An unhappy 'Match'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Q Do you remember the show 'Miss Match'? I thought it was so great, then boom! It's off the air. Did it get bad ratings? -Catherine Logusz, Michigan

A Sure, we remember it; that's our job. Lower than anticipated ratings might be a more charitable way to put it. NBC had high hopes for the Alicia Silverstone comedy-drama about a lawyer who moonlighted as a matchmaker, but several months into the 2003-04 season, the show's lack of ratings growth prompted the network to terminate it. Silverstone may not be done with series work, though; she has signed to do a Fox sitcom pilot titled 'Queen B.'

Q I have seen Timothy Busfield on 'Without a Trace' a few times lately, and he is in a wheelchair. Prior to this, I had seen him on 'The West Wing,' and he was walking. Is this wheelchair for the part he's playing, or did he

have an accident of some kind? -Lea Sopotnik via e-mail

A At virtually the same time he was hired to be co-executive producer of the CBS crime drama, Busfield was cast in the recurring role of Jack Malone's (Anthony LaPaglia) divorce attorney. Here's what happened, in his own words:

'I tripped and broke my right leg in four places while carrying a beanbag chair down some stairs. I also tore all the ligaments in my right foot, so I was unable to move, really. Since I had to work the next day, we decided the guy would either be on crutches or in a wheelchair, so we went with the wheelchair.'

Q I enjoyed Ashley Williams on 'Good Morning, Miami.' She really looks like a young Susan Day. Is she Susan Day's daughter? -Chuck Youcheff, York, Pa.

A No, but the co-star of the recent ABC Family Channel movie 'Snow' does have a relative who's in show business. Williams is the sister of Kimberly Williams-Paisley, who plays Dana on the ABC sitcom 'According to Jim.'

Sunday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Another day, another season. The real-time thriller returns with a two-part, four-hour premiere. In "Day 4: 7:00AM-8:00AM/Day 4: 8:00AM-9:00AM," counterterrorism agent Jack Bauer (Kiefer Sutherland) now works for the secretary of defense (William Devane) but returns to CTU to meet with its new boss, Erin Driscoll (Alberta Watson) after a train explodes. Kim Raver plays Jack's new love interest. Part 2 airs Monday.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC
American Dreams

In the new episode "Truth Be Told," Meg (Brittany Snow) decides to take things to the next level with Chris (Milo Ventimiglia), then learns that he lied to her. JJ and Beth's (Will Estes, Rachel Boston) wedding plans may not call for a Catholic ceremony, to Helen's (Gail O'Grady) dismay. A new project brings a new woman into Henry's (Jonathan Walker) life.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

The 31st Annual People's Choice Awards

New categories such as "favorite animated movie star" and "best line" have been added to this year's edition of the awards. Also, online voting has been expanded to allow fans to cast votes via the Internet in all categories. Awards are given in the fields of music, movies and television, and broken down in many instances into subcategories. For example, there are three reality TV series alone: competition, makeover and "other."

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Criminal Intent

Robert Carradine guest stars in the new episode "Gone" as a disturbed chess grandmaster suspected in the murder of a newly engaged woman. As Goren and Eames (Vincent D'Onofrio, Kathryn Erbe) investigate, they discover it'll take more than a couple of moves to solve this case, which also involves a pimp, a well-to-do family and a blackmail plot.

8 p.m. on 19-PR

Masterpiece Theatre

Suspicion drives a man mad with jealousy in "He Knew He Was Right," a new two-part adaptation of Anthony Trollope's novel. Oliver Dimsdale stars as Louis Trevelyan, the young husband consumed by the thought that his wife, Emily (Laura Fraser, "A Knight's Tale"), is cheating on him with a friend of her father's (Geoffrey Palmer, "Mrs. Brown"). Christina Cole plays Emily's sister, who has romantic problems of her own.

8 p.m. on HBO

Carnivora

The second season of the Depression-era drama opens with the new episode "Los Moscos." Brother Justin's (Clancy Brown) radio preaching lands him a new follower, a prisoner named Varlyn Strou (John Carroll Lynch). Ben (Nick Stahl) gets a message from Management about his father. Clea DuVall, Tim DeKay, Adrienne Barbeau and Ralph Waite also star.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Crossing Jordan

A gunman opens fire in the morgue, killing a bystander, in the new episode "Murder in the Rue Morgue." Jordan (Jill Hennessy) checks the records and discovers the killer's first victim, but as Woody (Jerry O'Connell) probes further, he discovers a link to a slain child prostitute and a possible motive for what originally looked like a random act.

9:01 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Founding partner Shirley Schmidt (Candice Bergen) rejoins the firm in an effort to restore order in the new episode "Schmidt Happens." A forceful sort — think Murphy Brown with a law degree — she is soon getting on Denny's (William Shatner) nerves. Lori (Monica Potter) represents a Sudanese man suing the United States for not taking action against atrocities in his homeland. Shore (James Spader) defends a man accused of killing his mother.

Nick (Keith Carradine) would like the occasional Saturday night to himself, so he urges city officials to open a teen center to give kids like his a place to hang out. They like the idea. In fact, they like it so much they make him the center's supervisor; so much for getting away from the kids. If he's going to be in charge, though, he's going to be strict, to the boys' dismay. Vincent Ventresca also stars in "Teen Things I Hate About You."

Ex-convict Jonny Calvo (Franky G, "The Italian Job") struggles to stay on the straight and narrow in this new drama series. He uses his knowledge of crime and the New York club scene — he's a former bouncer — to solve crimes and lend a helping hand; now, if only he could find someone to pay him for that. GQ ("Drumline") and Brennan Hesser play Jonny's new friends.

Connor and Durant (Neal McDonough, Kelli Williams) can't believe their microscopes when they discover what illness has felled a family of campers. It's smallpox, a confidant allegedly eradicated decades ago. As investigators search for their prime suspect, a rogue biochemist with a mobile lab, another infected patient turns up — shot dead. Christopher Gorham also stars in the new episode "Tribu."

Mike & Alma Myers celebrate 60th

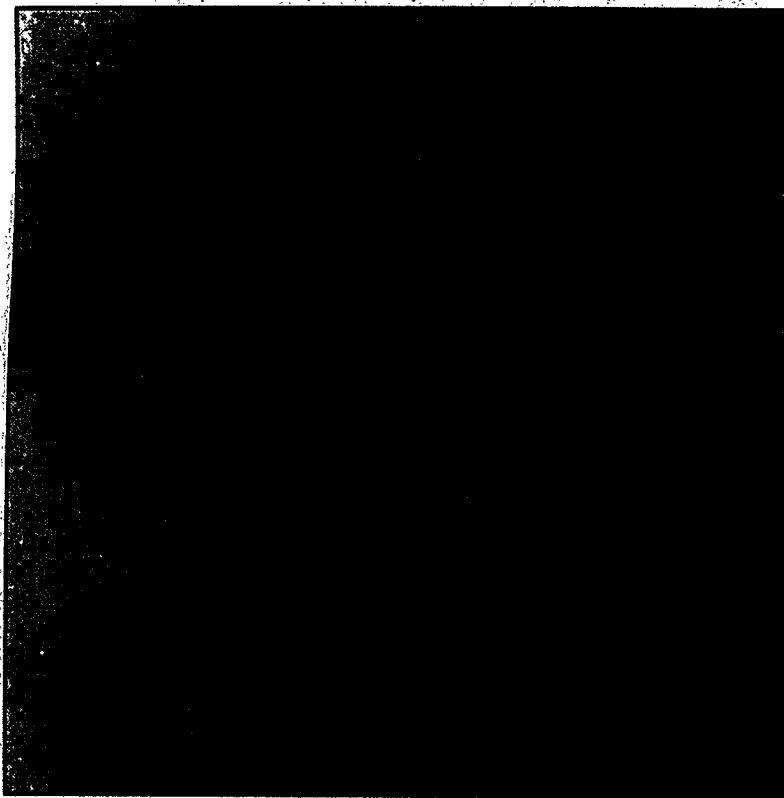

During World War II, many couples met in parts of the country and the world that were foreign to both parties. Because they were far from their homes and familiar surroundings – and because of war-time uncertainty – marriage seemed reasonable. It was urgent. It was now or perhaps never.

Most men might not have taken on such a responsibility in the peacetime years of the 1930s and very early '40s – the Great Depression had been a strong deterrent for such hasty decisions.

On the evening of December 15, 1944, Mike and Alma Myers of Waveland met in the ward where she worked at the Las Vegas Army Air Field (LVAF) base hospital. Although stationed at LVAF for two weeks or so, Mike had been doing air-to-ground training at Indian Springs, about sixty miles from the main base. He had flown with a cold and came down with otitis media, an inner-ear infection. Had Alma not been a workaholic and reported back to duty a day before her furlough ended, they might never have met; because very early the next morning, it was discovered that Mike also had scarlet fever.

He was immediately transferred to a ward handling contagious diseases. Alma visited him in that ward and their romance grew.

During the last week or so of his 39 days in the hospital, someone saw fit to have him act as the hospital DJ to make announcements and play music. Whoever was responsible probably rued the day they did it, because Mike dedicated just about every romantic song to Alma.

On Sunday, February 4, 1945 – on Mike's twelfth day out of the hospital – they were married in a little Nazarene Church in the residential section of Las Vegas. On Friday, February 4, 2005, they celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

The couple had five children. They also have nine grandchildren and one great-grandson.

The French National Honor Society at Hancock High School recently donated $4,000 to Doctors Without Borders, an international relief organization which provides medical assistance to victims of natural disasters and wars. The funds will be utilized to provide clean water and purchase medical, sanitation and logistical materials for patients. In 1999, Doctors Without Borders was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, and today the organization receives an A+ rating from the American Institute of Philanthropy. St. Clare celebrates Mass and Mardi Gras with Bishop Rodi

St. Clare students went all out for their visit with Bishop Rodi. The students always look forward to the Bishop's visit and this year was no exception. The students laughed and cheered as Bishop Rodi asked them what they would change about their school. Their responses included: Longer recess, shorter classes, no homework and more vacation time, just to name a few. The Bishop then went on to encourage them to treat their fellow students as Jesus would, with love and support especially when a fellow student is having a hard time.

Mr. Cumella, the principal at St. Clare then thanked the Bishop for his visit as well as the students and visitor for their participation. He then asked Anthony Depreo to come forward and lead the presentation for the Bishop.

Anthony made a presentation to the Bishop of a check for $779 that the students of St. Clare raised by making and hosting a Po-

Boy sale.

The money is to go to the Tsunami Relief Fund that the diocese has set up. This was followed by students Mia and Sahra El-Hamaki performing the Festival Alleluia, Ricky Schroder showing his math skills, Noah Nicaud and Abby Gollott rolling out the red carpet for the Bishop and Anthony Depreo presenting the Bishop his very own, personalized by Brett Farve, St. Clare Spirit shirt. Bishop Rodi then agreed to be the grand marshal for the Pre-K3 hall Mardi Gras parade through the school.

The bishop granted the students an extra 15 minutes of recess, much to their delight. As the Bishop departed the students were already trying to figure out what they would do for his visit next year.

St. Clare School is a Catholic Elementary School starting with Pre-K three through Sixth Grade. St. Clare is located on the beach in Waveland.
